

Hageman's 'Country Squire' is blend of hill country and modern

ROBERT HAGEMAN

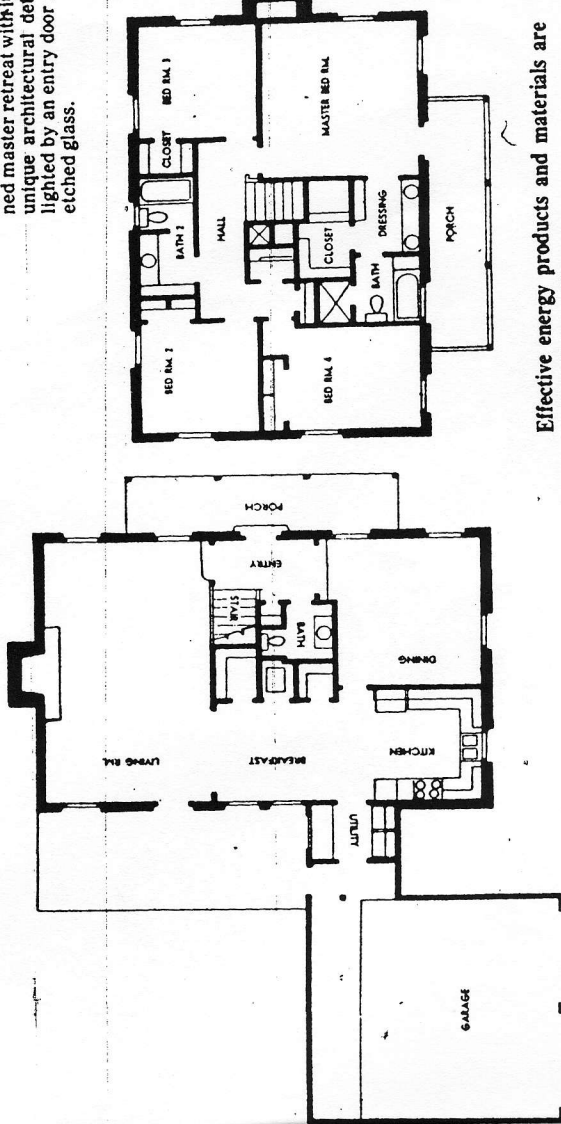

"The Country Squire"
Designer: Arthur Hamilton
Decorator: Judi McComis Interiors
Furnished by Haverly's Furniture

The Country Squire, a Texas Heritage Collection Home, is a unique blend of Texas Hill Country architectural heritage and modern technology for which Robert Hageman, Builder/Realtor, has become known.

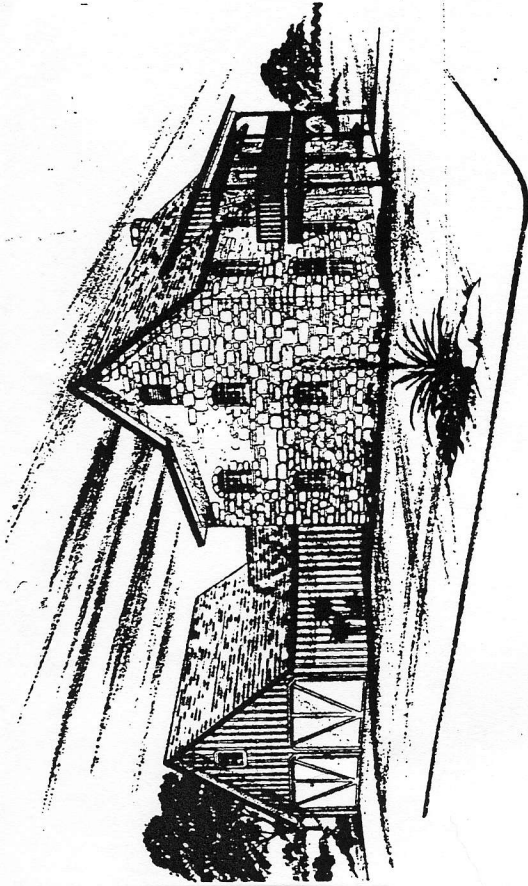

In this Texas Heritage Collection home, Robert Hageman has incorporated only those energy-conserving products and construction techniques which have proven to be effective.

The Country Squire offers its owner many unusual features in addition to the energy conserving ideas — tall-ceilinged, cross-ventilating rooms, virtually maintenance-free exterior, a well-designed master retreat with its own private porch, and unique architectural detailing throughout, highlighted by an entry door featuring an antique cut-etched glass.

As a specialist in building original design homes as well as the more traditional homes, Robert Hageman has shown an expertise in the handling of construction details that distinguishes his homes — whether the home is one of the Texas Heritage Collection, one of his contemporary "cliff hanger" series in Convict Hill, one of the garden atrium homes or a client's own custom-designed home.

Effective energy products and materials are used by Robert Hageman.
