

Quiet Luxury well describes Smith's home

J. W. SMITH

"Quiet Luxury"

Designer: A. N. M. Geldens & Assoc.

Decorator: Mrs. J. W. Smith

Furnished by Lacks Furniture

This elegant home, designed for the ultimate in privacy and grace, is perfectly described by its name — Quiet Luxury. This J. W. Smith home is a family-oriented house, yet it offers intimacy to the individual members.

One of the most exciting features of this 3-bedroom, 2-bath home is the magnificent master bedroom suite. Here, one can retreat to a secluded sitting room that centers around a brick fireplace. The executive bath fulfills its promise of luxury with a spacious bath and dressing area that features large his and her walk-in closets, double marble vanities, a sit-down dresser, a ceramic tiled bath and an additional tiled shower stall.

Other members of the family will find the other two bedrooms comfortably sized, as is the hall bath, with its double marble vanities.

For entertainment or relaxation, the spacious family room with its fashionable wet bar provides the perfect atmosphere. With its soaring cathedral ceiling, attractive brick heatilator fireplace, paneled walls and built-in bookcase, the room is given that warm and inviting feeling.

try kitchen is both attractive and practical, and provides ample counter and cabinet space along with a large walk-in pantry. For added convenience, the plan calls for two dining areas, both accessible to the kitchen. The formal dining room, with a built-in china cabinet, adds just the right touch of elegance, while the sunny breakfast area with the bay windows is casual.

Even though Smith's homes are luxurious, they're full of practicality. That's why he includes features such as two utility rooms, located in opposite corners of the house.
